The MEG-C Corpus is published on the University of Stavanger website. The main compilers are Merja Stenroos, Martti Mäkinen, Simon Horobin and Jeremy Smith. The project team involved in getting version 2011.1 ready has consisted of Nedelina V. Naydenova, Merja Stenroos, Jacob Thaisen and Kjetil V. Thengs.

The Corpus work was started by Jeremy Smith as part of the Middle English Grammar Project at the University of Glasgow in 1998, with Simon Horobin and Merja Stenroos as co-workers. The project was funded by the Arts and Humanities Research Board in the period 1998-2002; the funding included a full-time research fellowship, which was held by Simon Horobin.

Merja Stenroos has been a co-worker on the project since 1998, and has been leading a project team at Stavanger since 2006. During the period 2006-2010, the project was funded by the Norwegian Research Council. The funding included a three-year full-time postdoctoral fellowship, which was held by Martti Mäkinen.

In addition to the main compilers, a large number of people have taken part in producing MEG-C, whether working as research assistants or as part of their own research projects.

The following people have taken part in transcribing and proofreading the texts for MEG-C:

BW	Beata Wojtalik
CJ	Christina Jerez Delgado
CO	Cerwyss O'Hare
EL	Eleanor Lawson
HS	Hildegunn Støle
JJS	Jeremy J. Smith
JRT	Jacob Thaisen
JY	Judith Youngson
KVT	Kjetil Vikhamar Thengs
MML	Mari Munthe Landsnes
MSM	Martti Mäkinen
MRS	Merja Stenroos

NVN	Nedelina Vasileva Naydenova
SNS	Silje Nising Sandvold
SH	Simon Horobin
VJ	Vibeke Jensen

Martti Mäkinen was responsible for the creation of the Corpus website, and for the updating and maintenance of the previous versions of the Corpus. The revision for 2011.1 has been carried out by Jacob Thaisen.

The Readable version (.pdf and .html format) was produced from the Base files by Martti Mäkinen and Jacob Thaisen.

The Concordancer version was produced from the Base files by Merja Stenroos.

The main compilers of the Catalogue are Merja Stenroos and Kjetil V. Thengs. The classification of legal documents was carried out by Nedelina V. Naydenova, and the classification of scripts was carried out by Jacob Thaisen and Merja Stenroos.

We are very grateful to the Norwegian Research Council for funding the project in the period 2006-2010 and making possible the publication of the Corpus.

The University of Stavanger has contributed to the project through the funding of smaller subprojects under a scheme for 'Research initiated by women' in 2008 and 2009, as well as through funding for the Programme Area for North Sea Language History, of which the project forms a part. We are grateful to the Department of Cultural Studies and Languages, University of Stavanger, for providing us with research facilities.

Much of the Eastern material was transcribed in Glasgow during the period 1998-2002, with funding from the Arts and Humanities Research Board. The Department of English Language, University of Glasgow, has also supported the transcription of both Eastern and Southwestern texts.

We would like to thank the Special Collections Department, Edinburgh University Library, for allowing us access to their Middle English microfilm collection and providing much valuable assistance. Without this, the project could not have been carried out. We would also like to thank Margaret Laing and Keith Williamson of the Institute for Historical Dialectology, Department of English Language, University of Edinburgh, for their generous help and cooperation since the beginning of the project. We are also grateful to the Institute for hosting Martti Mäkinen during a five-month stay in the Spring 2007.

We are grateful to the staff of the following repositories for assistance and access to materials:
