

Supplementary rules for admission to Master in English and Literacy Studies

This document is a translation of a legally binding document originally written in Norwegian. If a dispute arises as to the interpretation of this document, the Norwegian version takes precedence.

§2 Admission requirements

A bachelor's degree, which includes at least 80 ECTS credits in English language and literature, is required. 30 of the 80 ECTS credits in English language and literature must be at advanced level, i.e., from the final two years of the Bachelor degree. Courses within translation, interpretation and English language teaching cannot be considered for admission to this programme.

Admission to this master's programme requires a minimum grade C in the courses in English language and literature. Applicants with an education where it is not possible to calculate grade points from parts of the degree, must have a grade of C in the entire degree in order to be qualified for admission. If you have an education using a different grade scale than ECTS grades (A-F), the grade point average must be comparable to a Norwegian C.

§3 Entry into force

The rules come into force starting admission to the academic year 2022/2023
