Practical information

ECTS Credits:

Participation in the summer school, i.e. submission and presentation of one's own work and active participation in all aspects of the summer school is accredited 5 ECTS points.

Registration and fee:

Participants must be enrolled as PhD students or provide a recommendation from senior supervisors for their ability to work at a postgraduate research-based level. The registration fee is  $200 \in$  and covers all tuition, most meals, and refreshments. Students who have no possibility of institutional support may apply for waiving of the fee. Students who are members of ESREA, or affiliated with a membership institution, may apply for a bursary from ESREA.

Deadlines:

Applications should be delivered through the online registration system by 15st of June 2022, and should include your name, institutional affiliation, a short description of the theme of your PhD research and a title for your paper submission. If applicable, the application must be accompanied by a recommendation from a home university professor for the waiving of the summer school fee.

A full paper (5000–7000-word excl. references) must be sent by August 8th 2022 to mastersekretariatet@ruc.dk

Accommodation:

At the summer school website participants may find recommended hotels and accommodation – and participants are asked to book hotel and accommodation themselves.

International PhD Summer School: Methodological Issues 23th – 26th August 2022

The Roskilde University International Summer School IMT has provided a decadelong tradition of dynamic doctoral training based on critical reflection and interactive forms of learning. Our significant focus is a continuous interest in methods and methodology and how this relates to research questions, theory, concepts, analyses and empirical findings.

This year's summer school will focus on methodological issues informed by theory. The ambition is to present and discuss research approaches in which we seek transparency and critical reflections on methods, methodology and how these choices form our analysis, representations, and texts. Such activities might include issues of subjectivity and discourses, learning and societal contexts that help us reframe and rethink qualitative research in learning, health, cultural activities, and participation in civil society, work life, social innovation, and families. The Summer School will also address basic questions of theory and epistemology and stimulate discussion of the role of researchers and their engagement in issues of societal importance – and how this might influence our research.

We welcome PhD projects within learning, health, professional development, and social innovation – within a variety of arenas such as educational institutions, working life, health care and social service, civil society, public and private organizations.

Working format

Summer School 2022 will present keynotes and invite papers that approach methodology in various ways. This includes discussions on theoretical choices and methodological implications, ethics, research's subjective and societal embeddedness, empirical designs, and analytical frameworks. We provide an inspiring environment for exchanging experiences with research processes across different fields and traditions.

Besides keynote and paper sessions, Summer School offers hands-on workshops on creative writing. This adds to the overall ambition of Summer School to be actively supportive for your Ph.D. work with opportunities to reflect and develop new perspectives around methodological considerations.
