With Matt Motta on November 23rd at 5:00 pm

Combating Skepticism Toward a Vaccine for COVID-19

Matt Motta is an assistant professor of political science at Oklahoma State University (American Politics & Quantitative Methods). His research aims to assess the prevalence, correlates, and policy consequences of misinformation about politics, public health, and the environment. He is also broadly interested in devising communication strategies aimed at reducing misinformation acceptance.

He received his PhD from the University of Minnesota in 2018, where he was a National Science Foundation Graduate Research Fellow. He is also a former science communication postdoctoral fellow at the Annenberg Public Policy Center (University of Pennsylvania) & Cultural Cognition Project (Yale Law School).

This event is FREE and open to the public. November 23, 2020, 17:00 – 18.00 (GMT +2) <https://stavanger.zoom.us/>
